What is 4D ultrasound?

Ultrasound is a safe, non-invasive exam. It utilizes sound waves to look inside the body. A probe placed on the mother's body emits sound waves and listens for the return echo to generate an image of the baby. This new 4D technology allows you to see movie-like images of your unborn baby!

How long does the ultrasound exam last?

There are many factors that impact the length of the ultrasound exam, including the position of the baby in the womb. However, a typical exam, including prep time, lasts approximately 30-50 minutes. All of our ultrasounds are done by licensed Sonographers.

When can I get a keepsake ultrasound?

The keepsake 4D ultrasounds are done between 28-34 weeks of pregnancy. They do require a referral from your attending physician and a previous normal ultrasound.
